Shortly after his designation as the first holder of the Koræes Chair in the Department of Byzantine and Modern Greek Studies at King's College, Arnold J. Toynbee, the well-known British historian, travelled to Greece and Asia Minor in 1921. Upon his return, he published (1922) the book "The Western Question in Greece and Turkey: A Study in the Contact of Civilisations", a book that caused a lot of reaction, leading to Toynbee's resignation in 1924 from the Koræes Chair.

Mr Panayotis Partzos, diplomat and translator of Toynbee's book in Greek, will discuss the book and its continuing influence.
